The Secret Agent Society

The Secret Agent Society is an innovative, evidence-based intervention small group program that uses a suite of games and activities to improve the emotional and social skills of 8-12 year-olds.

This flexible system helps practitioners, parents and teachers address the social difficulties of children with ASD by teaching children:

- How to recognise simple and complex emotions in themselves and others'
- How to express feelings in appropriate ways;
- How to cope with feelings of anger and anxiety;
- How to start, maintain and end conversations and play activities with others;
- How to tell the difference between friendly joking and mean teasing;
- How to deal with bullying;
- How to cope with making mistakes;
- How to cope with novel situations and ask for help when needed.

The program features a computer game with animated characters and interactive missions. The game is complimented by a range of other strategic activities that have been designed to captivate kids while they learn new social emotional skills in a fun way.

How can the Secret Agent Society help my child?

Raising a child who struggles to manage their emotions and cope with social situations can be challenging.

SAS is a fun group program which helps children learn how to feel happier, calmer and braver. It also teaches them how to make friends and keep them!

You can find out more about the program by visiting sst-institute.net.

Multiple research evaluations support the effectiveness of SAS

*Randomised controlled trials found 76 per cent of children who participated in SAS improved from showing clinically significant delays in social and emotional functioning to displaying these skills within the same range of typically developing children.

*Beaumont, R., and Scfronoff, K (2008). A multicomponent social skills intervention for children with Asperger syndrome. The junior detective training program, Journal of Child Psychology and Psychiatry, 49(7) 43-753
